Just in Time for Heritage Festival Woodsides Doing Neat Job on N. Huron

A BONUS TREAT FOR THE EYES will greet thousands of people who flock to Riverside Park during Heritage Days next weekend.

Paul and Gerry Woodside have put the grounds at 214 N. Huron St. into beautiful shape for the occasion. Their labors at the Historic Thompson House, which they bought from the City of Ypsilanti four years ago, are a visual embodiment of everything Heritage Days stand for. The Woodsides fell in love with the antique beauty of the home and grounds. They regretted the fact that the property had been badly neglected. So they bought the mid-1800s mansion and put their love into action.

The Woodsides' real home is located at 1112 Sherman St. But much of their lives since buying their "new" place has been devoted to its restoration. They stripped the old paint down to the wood and applied two new coats that did wonders for the exterior. They planted beds of flowers all around the dwelling. They created a lawn on the south side of the house where a gravel parking lot had been located before. And they commenced the Herculean task of bringing back the original beauty of the building's interior. This was a special challenge, and still is, because the home in recent years has been used as a youth center, and as a Washtenaw Community College facility — and in each of those roles the interior had been chopped up into fluorescent-lighted offices, meeting rooms and other utility areas.

Paul, the chief restorer in the family, counts 15 rooms in need of loving care — and he's making good progress on the job. Just one problem gives a clue of the obstacles he faces. The walls of the formal dining room were paneled originally. Some of the ornate wood trim that framed the paneling had to be restored. "They don't make that trim any more," Paul discovered. But the man is a marvel at solving problems, his wife declares — and the restoration is moving along.

The visual treat for Heritage Days at Riverside Park is Gerry's pride and pleasure. It's a near-vertical flower garden that starts high behind the house and swoops down to the park grounds near river level.

The steep bank was a mass of weeds when the Woodsides bought the place. Now it blazes with all the sunny colors of phlox, petunias, impatiens, marigolds, zinnias, moss roses and ageratum. Gerry had to be a mountain-climber as well as a floriculturist. A couple of times she took a tumble down the bank — and wondered with her bruises whether it had been wise to make it a rock garden.

But they love the place even more now than they did at first. The work seems to make their feelings grow.

The Woodsides' son, Wayne, lives there now. Their daughter and son-in-law Lori and James Murray lived there until they moved into a place of their own just recently. The young folks have helped. And occasionally guests will be offered the pleasure of volunteering assistance with small jobs such as the one in the photo. Gerry and Paul had company from California last week. The school days friends will stay for Heritage Days. And the Californians took part in Ypsi's community-wide project, helping groom the home for the annual event.

Paul, a fire-fighter with YFD, and Gerry have been nominated as entries in The Guide's Ypsi-Beautification contest. The competition is free to enter, and it offers cash prizes to winners and honorable recognition to all participants.

The judging will take place in early-to-mid-September and the winners will be announced soon after that. Meanwhile, there's still time to climb aboard as a contestant. Enter yourself, or enter a deserving friend or neighbor.

A contest form can be found in this Guide. Follow the simple directions — but do it soon.

And sometime during Heritage Days, do as the cameraman did. Amble over to Riverside Park, to the foot of the bank near the shelter — and look up. The view is great.

Spreading Problem Well Worth Probing

Columnist Russell Baker, a man with few equals when it comes time to tackle the typewriter, once wrote that the only way to get through the newspapers each day is to ask, "Is this crisis really worth understanding?"

For most who read, the answer is no, especially when trying to grasp the reasons for the epidemic of destruction spread by vandals. Nothing and no one is immune from its grip.

The vandals' search for a convoluted sense of glorification often leads them to the doorstep of public facilities, where they are assured high visibility. In some instances, schoolhouses are being converted into virtual fortresses to protect educational property from being defaced or wrecked. Figures indicate that prevention of damage to schools and the costs of repairing them approach $1 billion a year, about as much as is spent on textbooks.

an editorial

Statistics released by the U.S. Law Enforcement Assistance Administration show that the population of known vandals is dominated almost totally by youngsters, who often are motivated by youth-gang peer pressure. The figures go on to indicate that fewer than one-third of all vandalism cases result in arrests.

IN A CRIME SPREE as rampant and damaging, why are arrests and convictions so rare?

First, police lack the manpower and equipment to effectively combat the upsurge. Most incidents occur at night, when detection is virtually impossible around secluded areas. But perhaps the most glaring factor: public support for a common-sense offensive has been lacking.

Many citizens perceive vandalism as, at worst, a minor crime against property. As a result, few cities spend more than a tiny fraction of the police department budget on anti-vandalism programs.

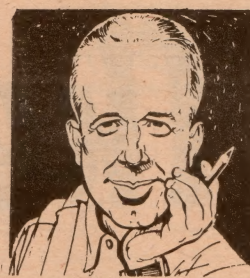

Only recently have some localities — prompted by the vicious nature of certain attacks — begun developing vigorous vandalism control programs, including task forces that combine the talents of police, fire, insurance investigators, and prosecutors. Along with these steps have come public-education programs, tipsters, and hot lines.

THE FOCUS IS OBVIOUS: potential culprits must know that they will be held accountable for their actions. Most experts conclude that they have to be frightened — enough to be forced to think things through, to have to come to terms with the damage that might flow from their behavior.

Hand-in-hand with this is a requirement that parents make restitution to victims for acts of vandalism committed by their children. The approach goes double for vandals of age.

To minimize the danger of vandalism to public and private facilities, or to gloss over the causes of violent expression would be a fundamental mistake. In a sense, vandalism's level is an index of society's ability to cope with its problems, meet the demands of its people, and ensure its own survival. At this point, it appears the proverbial patient is barely breathing.

Items Intimate and Not Too Serious

While browsing through a hardware store in Missouri recently I saw items that I thought had long since left the shelves. It was a nostalgic experience which promptly carried me back to 1935, when I slaved in a similar store in Michigan for the magnificent sum of three dollars a week.

That doesn't sound like much, to be sure, but in those days it was a fair sum, and based on the value of the dollar and my capabilities there is no question but that I was overpaid.

This establishment was a combination hardware store and implement dealership and if you remember the mid-thirties you know that farmers had lots of time to look at new farm equipment which they couldn't afford to buy.

The other boys around the store were allergic to the hot summer sun, or work, and it was usually my chore to start up a tractor and race around the demonstration lot beside the building for the benefit of prospective customers.

THAT SUMMER of 1935 was a mighty slow one. Even the flies showed little interest in following the horses.

No one had much money to spend and those who had were sitting on it. We spend most of our working hours pitching nickels at the crack in the floor. The nickels came out of the cash register and went back to the same drawer after each game.

About the only sales we made were an occasional roll of binder twine or a half dozen fish hooks.

One day while demonstrating a tractor I had a veritable bonanza tossed right into my lap. An insurance man who had some acreage on the edge of town offered me five dollars cash if I could bring the tractor over and disc one of his fields. I cleared this with the boss and over I went.

The field was nothing but long grass and weeds and after I had gone over it once you could hardly see that I had accomplished anything. After going over the field a couple of more times it didn't look much different than if it had been hit by a hard hail storm. It appeared that a fourth treatment was necessary.

This tractor had a crack on the front end, as all tractors did, and at one end of the field there was a slight dip in the landscape, bordered by a row of trees. I started to turn my tractor at this particular point and had the misfortune to hook the crank around a fair-sized tree. The back wheels were higher than the front, so that when I tried to reverse I just dug myself in.

THE CRANK already was bent and to extricate my machine would only break it off completely. Being of ready mind and quick wit, I realized there was only one solution. I borrowed a neighbor's axe and cut down the tree. Then I drove up to the insurance man's house, collected my five dollars and drove away.

He prized the tree more than I did. When he found it nothing but a pile of chips he came charging in and demanded his five dollars, with another $25 for the tree. I gave him his five dollars back, but I pleaded that I wasn't very smart and didn't know any better than to cut down his tree.

My father backed me to the limit in this stand. We agreed 100 percent that I wasn't very smart.

HOMER FERGUSON, when he was Michigan's senior senator in Washington, was in the state to speak at some political banquet or another. At times the good Senator had trouble remembering names, or at least associating them with the proper faces—and this can be a deadly problem to a politician.

On this occasion he bumped into a man he had known for years and had been associated with in various projects, Sky Marshall, former newspaper publisher. He walked toward Sky with his hand extended and said, "Well, hello there Mr. er-uh-uh-uh . . ." and then brightly, "how's everything in Marshall?"

"Fine," shot back Sky just as brightly, "how's everything in Homer?"

HERITAGE FESTIVAL AUG. 26, 27 & 28

Things I learned about the Heritage Festival while looking other things up.....

By Sydney Harris aka Marjean Rose

— That when the drums go boom and the cymbals clang next Saturday it may be sweet music to the spectators but Paul Feters and his committee will be chalking off another 15¢ everytime Tommy toots his horn. Their budget of $2,700 enables them to procure some very professional bands and they will have used most of their money to provide transportation and food for the band members.

— That over 100 entries are expected in the Parade, almost all in careful keeping with the historical theme. "It's not the campaign trail," says Paul. "Politicians and commercial enterprises have been discouraged from participating." However, look for Chucky Cheese and a few other very familiar faces.

— That John Barr and the Boy Scouts are pounding the pavement encouraging pre-sales of Franzen Brothers Circus tickets. On pre-sales, the Festival receives a percentage of the proceeds. So if you plan to attend this exciting 3-ring show, please purchase your tickets before August 25. Call the Chamber of Commerce at 482-4920 for ticket information.

— That without Jeff Teachout, chaos might prevail. Jeff is in charge of the information booths — building, equipping, and manning them with volunteers for the three days. No small task, his!

— That Pat King and Judy Neimas are responsible for getting everyone in the mood as chairmen of the "Think Festival!" reception the night before the Heritage event begins. The Thursday night kick-off party will be held in the gambling casino tent and tickets are only $5, which entitles you to hors d'oeuvres from Woodruffs Grove and a glass of champagne. After that you're on your own with drinks priced $1. To hob-nob with the who's-who in the Festival's circle, or just for community fun, pick up your ticket at the Chamber, 11 N. Adams. After 500 tickets have been sold the tent flap will be closed.

— That plans are underway to display the Bi-Centennial quilt, designed by King Calkins, at the Quilt Show being held Saturday in the old High School gym. Mack and Mack will provide the bed for its display.

— That the Kiwanis Club will prepare over 2,000 chickens on Saturday for its Barbeque Dinner. Hours are noon to eight.

— That there will be two Ice Cream Socials and a Rotary Club pancake breakfast. Dieters are in trouble as 50 vendors will be on hand with their specialties. Beer will also be available at the huge beer tent.

— That there are many ways to participate in this fun-filled weekend; Wear a historic costume and, if you like, meet at Recreation Park before the parade and ride on the costume float. Check the schedule for the special events — Frog jumping contest, horseshoe pitch, marble tournament, etc.

— That Ypsilanti can compete with the best as Festival 'put-er-oners!'

After it's all over, let's hear what YOU thought of the Festival. Send your comments or suggestions to The Ypsi Guide, P.O. Box 336, Ypsilanti, MI 48197.

Pizza Man Does his Thing At Casino Now

Richard Rice was only 15 when he landed his first job as a pizza man. In the years since then, he has learned the business well, working and succeeding with three leading pizza firms. He also married, and he and Tracy now have Brian and Brent, twin boys, going-on-1, and big sister Christina, 3.

Now he's fulfilling the dream he had all along, with his father as silent partner, Rich launched their own pizza partnership this month. Casino Pizza opened August 10 at 965 Ecorse Rd., next-door to the neighborhood's favorite landmark, the Carry Dairy with the big cow on the roof.

Casino Pizza's Grand Opening is going on right now, and it features pizza prices as low as 19 cents!

Good time to get acquainted!

The phone number at Casino Pizza is a good one to write down: 483-6900.

Que Clue: Food is Soo-o-per

THE QUE. That's the popular new restaurant on E. Michigan Ave. near Ridge Rd. Que stands for the world's best barbecues.

THE SIZEMORES. That's the family that runs The Que. Sizemore stands for the world's biggest barbecues.

Biggest and best make a good combination for customers. It didn't happen just by chance.

It took a lady named Evelyn Sizemore.

Mrs. Sizemore raised a happy family, mothering, cooking, housekeeping and teaching her five children. She taught Judy, Carol and Nancy all her cooking secrets, and Lee and Greg listened carefully.

Now Lee runs The Que, and Carol and Judi run the kitchen. Nancy will probably join up when she gets a little older.

EVELYN DROPS IN OFTEN, to enjoy the good cooking, and so do lots of other Ypsi area people. More every day!

HOW ABOUT YOU? That nice batch of hickory smoked ribs prepared by Judi and Carol in the photo could have been yours.

THE QUE hotline is 483-2110. A phone call will place your order. The address is 2839 E. Michigan, just west of Ms. G's Lounge.

Free Immunization Clinics Set

The first day of school is close at hand. It is time to update student immunizations for protection against seven childhood diseases: measles, mumps, rubella, polio, diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus.

According to Michigan law, new students, including transfer students in grades 1-12 as well as kindergartners, must present records with dates of all necessary vaccinations. In addition, all children attending child care centers and preschools must submit immunization records.

Special attention should be given to students entering grades 5-12. Students in this age group (10-18) may need a measles, mumps and/or rubella shot to qualify for school entrance and to assure their protection against these diseases.

Recent outbreaks of measles in neighboring states affected college students; therefore, many teens and young adults remain susceptible. Serious complications can result from both measles and mumps. Rubella immunity, although important for both young men and young women, is crucial for young women approaching childbearing years, as the disease, if contracted by a pregnant woman, may damage the unborn baby.

All required immunizations may be obtained from your private physician, clinic of your choice or through the Washtenaw County Health Department clinics.

In late August and early September the Health Department will hold a number of special clinics at various sites around the county. A number of these are in cooperation with Catherine McAuley Health Center, as the clinic will travel to several sites on Catherine McAuley's Health Promotion Van. These special clinics are open to all infants — 18-year-olds and TB testing is available for adults and children except on Thursdays.

NEWS OF CHILDREN

The Cost Of Aiding World's Poor Children: 73 Cents A Day

A recent study reveals that today, helpless children in developing countries can be aided at the amazingly low cost of only 73 cents a day for clean water, healthy food, clothing and education—about the cost of an average ice cream cone in America.

An American sponsor can help dramatically and most effectively, according to Kenneth H. Phillips, National Executive Director of Foster Parents Plan, Inc., by aiding a poor Third World child in his or her own family and community. By working through the organization's trained, dedicated, professional, audited international staff, the best possible care can be delivered—not just a part of a massive relief effort—but care for a child the sponsor can know personally.

For free brochures, write Foster Parents Plan, Inc., Dept. D-120, 155 Plan Way, Warwick, RI 02887 or call, toll-free 1-800-556-7918.
